

Tips for Work-Life Coordinators and Supervisors

Dependent Care

Employees with dependent care responsibilities may need support during the phased return to work. These employees may need to phase back to a regular work situation at a pace that is responsive to their needs. Here are some tips for Work-Life Coordinators and Supervisors to help employees as they consider returning to work.

 Remind employees that there are work-life programs tailored to support working caretakers.

Utilize your Employee Assistance Program (EAP) to direct employees to a wide range of resources available to assist with the care of a child or an adult or elderly family member in need.

• Help employees phase back to a regular work situation. Determine a pace that is responsive to each employee's unique needs. Have conversations among Work-Life Coordinators, Supervisors, and employees to determine the best path forward.

 Encourage the continued application of workplace flexibilities, to include the use of maximum telework.
 Employees with dependent care responsibilities may benefit from continuing to exercise workplace flexibilities benefit from continuing to exercise workplace flexibilities.

Review OPM's Maxi-Flex Guidance for additional details.

 Explore working with agency vendors/contractors that provide dependent care supports to the workforce to meet emerging or changing needs.
 OPM encourages agency Work-Life Coordinators to partner with their provider to respond to the workforce.

more information

Contact your local HR office to find your agency's EAP Administrator
or search OPM's
Work-Life Contact Tool available at:
opm.gov/CCLContact

Additional information is available at opm.gov/worklife

